

Community Education Campaign Internship Description

The community education campaign intern works with the communications team under the Director of Content Development. College students with a communications, public relations, marketing, or related major, and an interest in the issue of sexual violence are encouraged to apply.

Responsibilities will include assisting communications staff with:

- Researching best practices for community education
- Understanding gaps in our current community education and how we can fill it
- Creating a new campaign for PAVE from the ground up
- Handling all marketing and promotional efforts for launching campaign

Preferred Qualifications:

- Passionate about PAVE's mission and supporting & empowering survivors of sexual violence
- Experience using various graphic design softwares
- Self-starter, independent worker
- Creative and thoughtful approach to projects

This internship is:

- Paid ($500 stipend)
- Fully remote
- Eligible for college credit

Applications accepted until position is filled.

Requirements:

Cover letter and resume. The cover letter should be concise, compelling, and include why you would like to be an intern for PAVE. Please send all materials to danielle@pavingtheway.net to be considered.